

Legal warnings

Intellectual property

Any trade marks, copyright, patents, intellectual property rights or other property rights applicable to the present site belongs to Call Communications in perpetuity.

The www.callcommunications.be/eu site concerns both a creation protected by copyright and a database on which Call Communications retains copyright and producer rights.

Any copy, adaptation, translation, arrangement, communication to the general public, rental or other use, modification of all or part of this site in any form whatsoever and by any means, be they electronic, mechanical or other, are strictly prohibited except if prior written agreement has been given by Call Communications.

Any infringement of these rights may lead to civil or penal proceedings. Names, logos and other signs used on this site, including the Call Communications logo and name, are legally protected trade marks or commercial names. Any use of these signs or signs resembling them is strictly prohibited without the prior written agreement of Call Communications

Responsibility for content

Call Communications does not provide any guarantee regarding the security of the website, neither relating to any virus or fraud by computer. The visitor should be aware of the fact that Internet use entails certain risks.

Call Communications gives the greatest possible care in creating and updating this site. Nevertheless, it cannot be excluded that some information may not conform to reality. You are kindly requested to show understanding in this respect. The user is aware that any information, especially relating to products and services offered for sale, may be modified without prior notice. Call Communications declines any responsibility regarding the content of the site and its use.

If lines to other sites are opened, Call Communications may not under any circumstance be held responsible for the content and existence of other sites.